2010 ELECTIONS

Each of the 203 seats of the House of Representatives, and half of the 50 state Senate seats, will face the electorate this November. Political partisanship has never before been so clearly cut and the battle for which political party controls these bodies will be hard fought – and expensive.

Additionally, Pennsylvania will be selecting a new Governor. Because the state's chief executive appoints the heads of all regulatory agencies that oversee dealer operations (e.g., the Departments of Transportation, Revenue, Banking and State) and establishes the regulatory philosophy of these agencies, it is imperative that the Governor's Office be occupied by an individual knowledgeable and appreciative of the perspectives of our membership.

With the invaluable assistance of the PAA-PAC, PAA has been able to ensure that Pennsylvania's elected officials possess that appreciation. Dealer contributions to the PAC are used exclusively to support candidates for state office who share our priorities and assist with the realization of the association's legislative agenda.

Please join your fellow dealers who generously contribute to the PAA-PAC.

Because so much is at stake, and because rules and policies imposed by elected officials have such a direct effect on your ability to do business, it has never been more important to be involved in the political process.
